this study records an epistemic shift away from logocentric and totalizing approaches to reality by analyzing the links between the novelistic strategies used by spanish writers from 1975 to 1989 and recent international events and theoretical trends in science mathematics communication studies and art in the prison of love emily francomano offers the first comparative study of this sixteenth century work as a transcultural humanist fiction silent film was universally understood and could be exported anywhere but when talkies arrived the industry began experimenting with dubbing subtitling and dual track productions in more than one language where language fractured the european film market for spanish speaking countries and communities it created new opportunities in the rise of spanish language filmmaking lisa jarvinen focuses specifically on how hollywood lost ground in the lucrative international spanish speaking audience between 1929 and 1939 hollywood studios initially trained cadres of spanish speaking film professionals created networks among them and demonstrated the viability of a broadly conceived transnational spanish speaking film market in an attempt to forestall the competition from other national film industries by the late 1930s these efforts led to unintended consequences and helped to foster the growth of remarkably robust film industries in mexico spain and argentina using studio records jarvinen examines the lasting effects of the transition to sound on both hollywood practices and cultural politics in the spanish speaking world she shows through case studies based on archival research in the united states spain and mexico how language as a key marker of cultural identity led to new expectations from audiences and new possibilities for film producers while many professional translators believe the ability to translate is a gift that one either has or does not have allison beeby lonsdale questions this view in her innovative book beeby lonsdale demonstrates how teachers can guide their students by showing them how insights from communication theory discourse analysis pragmatics and semiotics can illuminate the translation process using spanish to english translation as her example she presents the basic principles of translation through 29 teaching units which are prefaced by objectives tasks and commentaries for the teacher and through 48 task sheets which show how to present the material to students published in english
